

Take your ideas into another dimension

Study A-level three-dimensional design to:

- learn how to use the right materials to bring your ideas to life
- develop an understanding of scale, form, mass and construction techniques
- blend creative thinking with practical application.

To find out more about course content and areas of study, visit:
aqa.org.uk/why-3D-design

Learn to use your visual language

Study A-level graphic communication to:

- develop your personal visual language
- explore materials, techniques and processes and how they can be used to communicate ideas
- understand historical and contemporary influences on graphic design.

To find out more about course content and areas of study, visit:
aqa.org.uk/why-graphic-communications

Push the boundaries of your creativity

Study A-level art, craft and design to:

- draw from two or more areas of study including fine art, graphic communication, photography, textile design and three-dimensional design
- develop a broad practical and contextual understanding of art and design.

To find out more about course content and areas of study, visit:
aqa.org.uk/why-art-craft-design