Read ITEM A below and answer the question that follows.

ITEM A

Social class differences can have an impact on pupil achievement. One way of trying to reduce such differences is to put into place educational policies that directly focus on reducing the gap in achievement between social classes. Some sociologists believe that educational policies can change the level of support working-class students receive in education. They think educational policies like “pupil premium” and compensatory education can effectively reduce class inequalities in educational achievement.

Other sociologists see social class differences in educational achievement as a reflection of wider inequalities between classes. They believe that educational policies are only likely to have a temporary short-term effect.

Applying material from ITEM A and your knowledge, evaluate the view that government educational policies are effective in reducing social class inequalities in education. [20 marks]

METHODS IN CONTEXT06

Read ITEM B below and answer the question that follows.

ITEM BInvestigating gendered behaviour in schools

Gendered behaviour refers to the different ways that the gender identities of girls and boys can often lead to different ways of acting. In education, gendered behaviour is often studied to gain a better understanding of how such behaviour might explain different outcomes in achievement between girls and boys. Gendered behaviour may be seen in schools, in particular in classrooms, corridors and the playground.

One way of studying gendered behaviour is through covert participant observation. Participant observation has the advantage of placing the researcher very close to the behaviour being studied. This may be the case, in particular, with covert participant observation. However, there can be ethical issues with using covert participant observation as well as issues of gaining entry into the group to be studied.

Applying material from ITEM B and your knowledge of research methods, evaluate the strengths and limitations of using covert participant observation to investigate gendered behaviour in schools. [20 marks]
