General Comments

This was only the second year of the specification for the GCSE award in Chinese Speaking since its implementation in 2019. Due to the impact of COVID-19, teachers and students have experienced two years of centre assessed grades (CAGs) and teacher assessed grades (TAGs), with speaking endorsements replacing formal speaking assessments. Following this hiatus, teachers and students in 2022 were once again able to prepare for the spoken language to be assessed in the normal way through formal speaking tests, as was the case in 2019. Without a doubt, this style of testing encouraged a more authentic approach to speaking compared with the speaking endorsements of 2020 and 2021.

As in 2019, there was a very positive response to this specification: another successful year. The performance of the paper in the light of students' responses demonstrated that centres continued to have a good understanding of the established specification and its effective implementation. It was very pleasing to see a significant increase in the number of schools that entered students for AQA GCSE Chinese compared to previous years. This increase reflects the ongoing encouraging situation for Chinese language teaching and learning.

On the whole, centres coped very well with the requirements of the specification, with many wellconducted tests seen. The format of the normal GCSE Chinese speaking test continued to allow all students to demonstrate a level of oral proficiency that was commensurate with their ability. In particular, most schools that had used this specification in the past administered and carried out the tasks to a much higher standard this year, which indicated that they had heeded the report provided by AQA based on the conduct of the exams in 2019, and that teachers had taken on board the advice and suggestions given. While reflecting on this positive aspect, it is also worth noting that in a minority of cases the specification requirements were not correctly followed, which resulted in some disadvantage to students. This report provides a comprehensive overview of the 2022 GCSE Chinese speaking test, both in terms of teacher conduct and student performance. It will highlight best practice, as well as signposting areas for improvement for 2023 and subsequent years.

Tier of Entry

In the light of students' responses, the vast majority of Foundation Tier students were appropriately entered at the correct tier. In comparison with 2019, this year centres had made much more judicious entry decisions for their students. There was no significant evidence to suggest that Foundation tier students may have fared better had they been entered for the Higher tier (as was the case in 2019). Nevertheless, centres are advised to continue making judicious entry decisions that will allow students to perform to their full potential next year.

Quality of Recording

Generally, tests were well administered by centres with very clear recordings and accurate information given on the Attendance Record form, all of which contributed to a more efficient marking process. Centres should, however, be aware that it is imperative that the speaking test is conducted at a suitable venue and that a quality recording device is used. Although this was usually the case, there were some instances where external background noise and/or poor quality recordings affected the audibility of what students said, all of which made marking a very difficult exercise for the examiners. In a minority of cases, examiners had to report to AQA instances of unclear recordings, in the hope that improvements to the quality of the recordings could be made. However, this was not always possible and in some cases the recordings of students were not clearly audible, the teacher's voice was much louder than the student's, or there was a lot of background noise, all of which made it extremely difficult for the examiners to work out what the students were saying. When background noise in all its forms (school bell, mobile phones, paper flipping, etc.) became intrusive, this created problems for marking. Centres are reminded to be aware of extraneous noise issues and to avoid this happening again in future years. Centres are also reminded that they should not stop or pause the recording at any time during the test.

Teacher Conduct

Test Routine Procedures

It was pleasing to note that there has been an overall improvement in the conduct of the tests compared to the first year of this specification, with the vast majority of teachers adhering closely to the guidelines laid out in the Instructions for the Conduct of Examinations. The introductory information for each test was concisely, clearly and effectively articulated. However, it is worth reminding teachers that at the start of each candidate's test, the student's candidate number and candidate name should be announced by the teacher, and not by the student. Occasionally the candidate number was wrongly given by the teacher and this caused confusion and delay in the marking process.

The prescribed combination of Role-play, Photo card and General Conversation given in the sequence chart was adhered to by the vast majority of teachers. Unfortunately, there were a small number of instances where the wrong combination of Role-play, Nominated Theme and Photo Card was used, resulting in the theme of the Photo card being duplicated in the General Conversation, or, at times, only one Theme being covered in the General Conversation. In such cases, the maximum mark for Communication that can be awarded is 5 out of a possible 10.

Some centres also failed to follow the correct Candidate Order while conducting the tests. The table in the Sequence Chart must be followed precisely, so that the first 20 candidates of every teacher-examiner at a centre are each allocated a different sequence of tasks. Only if there are more than 20 candidates should a teacher-examiner go back to Candidate No. 1 on the Sequence Chart. This is to avoid a situation in which many candidates use the same Role-Play cards.

Once the test has begun, procedural matters should be announced succinctly in the target language. Transitions between sections of the test should be very clear. There is no need for any use of English during the tests: each new section should be introduced in Chinese, for instance by using a sentence such as '第一部分,角色扮演卡片 1, 我是你的朋友。'; to indicate to the candidate that s/he should begin his/her Photo card task, the teacher can say '现在进入第二部分, 图片会话/or 看图会话卡片 E。照片里有什么?'; to indicate the transition from the Photo card task to the General Conversation a sentence such as '现在进入第三部分, 普通会话 1, 你选的是主题 2……' can be used. It is particularly important to announce the change of theme during the General Conversation, e.g. 普通会话 2, 主题是……'.

This year it was pleasing to see that the vast majority of teachers did very clearly indicate the transition from one section to the next in the target language as suggested above. Some teachers at the same centres should be commended for their well-organised test procedures and consistent way of conducting the test for each student. However, in a minority of cases, English was still used to indicate the start of each section of the test. In some cases there was no transition to indicate the change of theme in the General Conversation. Teachers are reminded that, for the benefit of both candidates and examiners, they should clearly signal the transition to the second theme of the General Conversation in the target language after the discussion of the first (nominated) conversation theme has concluded.

Teachers are reminded that the students' language should not be corrected during the test, nor should they be given any key vocabulary; in such cases, no credit can be given for a student's subsequent response.

Students are expected to use repair strategies, if needed, throughout the test. An aspect of this is to ask for clarification or repetition. Many teachers had taught their students phrases such as 'if it -id . '. When students asked in English for a question to be repeated, the subsequent response was credited for Communication, but, in the case of the Role-play and General Conversation, it could contribute to a lower mark for Use of language.

At times, while the student was still trying to answer a question, the teacher moved on to another question and did not allow the student sufficient time to complete their answer. Teachers needed to be a little more patient in allowing the students some thinking time and letting them complete their answer before moving on to the next question. On some occasions, teachers accidently skipped a question in the Role-play and/or Photo card sections, which not only confused candidates but also disadvantaged them by leading to a loss of marks.

It is most important that teachers thoroughly understand the Instructions for the conduct of the exams and ensure that they are applied correctly.

Timings

Timings were usually appropriate for the tier, but in a significant number of centres this was not the case.

There is no fixed time for the Role-play task, however most students completed this section within the suggested two minutes for Foundation tier. Hesitant delivery and repetition sometimes led to overlong Role-plays. Occasionally, teachers gave lengthy responses to students' questions, which should be avoided. This also applies to the General Conversation section.

Most students completed the Photo card task comfortably within the time limit at both tiers. At Foundation tier, where the time limit is two minutes, there were some cases where not all five questions were asked within the time allowed. This was occasionally due to very slow delivery by the student, but more often the result of an overlong and repetitive type of answer in response to the first question, 'Describe the photo'. The problem was at times also caused by teachers not strictly adhering to the five questions in the Teacher's Booklet, but instead asking supplementary follow-up questions.

At both tiers, most teachers adhered to the minimum and maximum timings for the General Conversation. Some failed to reach the minimum time per theme for Foundation, i.e. one and a half minutes. There were also some occasions when the minimum time requirement was not met for both of the themes. This impacted on the mark awarded for Communication. Teachers are reminded that it is vital to allocate the time for the two themes appropriately. Centres are advised to note that the timing of each General Conversation theme starts immediately after the first question on that theme has been asked. Anything said by the student beyond the maximum time limit (two and a half minutes) is disregarded for assessment purposes.

This year there were some particular issues which are worth noting and need to be addressed in the future. In one instance, due to inappropriate time management, the Role-play took around 6 minutes and the Photo card lasted nearly 3 minutes. This situation was caused by the student's frequent and protracted hesitation and repetition and the teacher's excessive waiting time. As a result, the teacher ran out of time and was not able to ask any questions for the General conversation, which obviously impacted greatly on the student's overall marks. To avoid such a situation, teachers are advised to pay close attention to timing throughout the test.

Conducting the Role-play Task

In the Role-play, the prescribed wording in the Teacher's booklet was adhered to by most teachers. In a minority of cases, however, teachers rephrased the script, which invalidated any subsequent response by the candidate. Centres are reminded that teacher-examiners must adhere precisely to the script. They may change the target language script given only if the candidate's response makes the wording of the script inappropriate. Teachers may repeat a question, but they should not rephrase any questions. It was noted that some teachers repeated questions too many times, or rephrased questions, sometimes even supplying key vocabulary in the question. Other teachers waited too long when students were clearly unable to answer. On some occasions teachers kept repeating '还有吗?' in order to elicit further details, when in fact the student had already given sufficient information to answer the question, which confused the students and could even result in incorrect answers. Occasionally teachers inadvertently omitted words from the script when asking a question. Teachers are reminded to take extra care when reading out the script in the Teacher's Booklet.

In the case of two-part questions, e.g. those requiring an opinion and a reason, most students responded very well, using the conjunction word ' $\square \beta$ ' to give a justification immediately after expressing an opinion. It is good practice to prompt the students by repeating ' $\beta + \alpha$ ?' to elicit a missing justification to ensure that the task is fully completed.

Conducting the Photo Card Task

Overall, this section was well conducted by the vast majority of teachers. The five prescribed questions were asked in the order given in the Teacher's Booklet. The two-minute maximum time for Foundation tier was adhered to, and the time allowance proved ample for students to provide developed answers to all five questions. However, some significant issues occurred in a small number of centres which need to be addressed for the benefit of future candidates.

Centres are reminded that, unlike in the Role-play section, in the Photo card task a question may be paraphrased. When considering any paraphrasing of Photo card questions, the exact original meaning of the question must be maintained. This can be achieved through the substitution of an individual word with a synonym or, in some cases, with the use of a different language structure. However, no additional elements, which aim to clarify the question further, are permitted. During the test, teachers generally made minor changes to the script, without altering the meaning, which was acceptable. However, at times some questions were significantly changed; alternative questions were asked, a question was omitted, or the answer was supplied to the student by providing a choice question. All of these situations disadvantaged the students concerned, and as a result students' responses could not be credited. Furthermore, the addition of supplementary questions by teachers sometimes meant that not all of the questions in the Teacher's Booklet were asked within the prescribed maximum time allowance, preventing students from achieving the highest marks. Centres are reminded to follow the Instructions for the Conduct of Examinations and where it states: No supplementary questions must be asked. Teachers are also reminded to keep to the appropriate timing: two-minute maximum time for Foundation tier.

Conducting the General Conversation

In general, this part of the test was far more spontaneous than the other two sections, but also more challenging. It was well-conducted by the majority of teachers in a highly professional way. Students were provided with sufficient opportunities to show their full potential in responding to all the questions, including producing at least one question for the teacher to answer during the General Conversation. However, there are some areas which need to be improved and also some good practice which should be commended.

It was pleasing to find that many teachers conducted their tests well and asked different questions to different students, tailoring the questions to their students' ability and interests. Unfortunately, there were some teachers who seemed to have a set list of questions for each topic and kept to this list for all students, no matter what their ability. This usually had a negative effect on students' marks, especially for the least able, who were unable to answer the more difficult questions. When moving from one theme to another, most teachers did as advised and indicated the change of theme on the recording, as discussed in the section above: Test Routine Procedures. This was helpful for the student and also for the examiners.

Timings were usually good. The total timing for the General Conversation at Foundation tier is between three and five minutes. However, the time spent on each theme is equally important. If a student spent less than one and a half minutes on one or both themes, there was a deduction of two marks for Communication. It was also noted that some teachers spent longer than the prescribed maximum time on both of the conversation themes. At times, there was a significantly unequal time spent on the two themes, with one theme being much longer than the other.

Another area where a deduction of marks was applied was when a student failed to ask the teacher-examiner a clearly understandable question. In such cases, there was a deduction of one mark. The question could be on either of the two themes covered in the General Conversation. The teacher-examiner is allowed to prompt the student to ask a question by saying 你有问题吗? or 你有问题要问我吗? In some centres none of the students asked a question, which should be avoided next year. Sometimes the question was asked after the maximum time had been exceeded (two and a half minutes for Foundation tier) and so a one mark deduction was applied for Communication. Teachers are advised to encourage students to ask a question early on in the conversation to ensure it does not fall outside the time allowed. At both tiers, questions were consistently asked that allowed all students to give and explain opinions, which is necessary for accessing the Foundation tier top band for Communication. At Foundation tier, most students were given the chance to use three time frames and thereby access the 9-10 band for Range and Accuracy.

It is not advisable to ask two or three questions in quick succession, without allowing students the chance to answer each question separately, since this makes it likely that candidates forget to include part of the answer, particularly less able students. Teachers should be aware that a presentation is not an acceptable format for this section of the test. The emphasis is on dialogue, not monologue. Where students engaged in long monologues, spontaneity could not often be rewarded. Students should be given an opportunity to demonstrate an ability to respond spontaneously to questions and develop their answers rather than relying heavily on pre-learnt responses.

Student Performance

Students mostly coped well with the requirements of the specification and much good language use was in evidence. However, it was found that at Foundation tier, a couple of students responded to teachers' questions with '我不知道。' throughout the test, which resulted in a score of zero. It is hoped that this can be avoided in future tests. At times, where poor pronunciation and tones resulted in an unclear message, credit could not be given for that particular response.

Student Performance in the Role-play Task

It was pleasing to note that most students were able to access the bullet points and formulate an appropriate and succinct response. Sometimes students did not address the tasks, but offered other, unrelated information, or did not answer the questions in a straightforward way, which showed that they were relying solely on pre-learnt responses.

The unprepared item, indicated by !, was difficult for some, but not as challenging as the ? item, which required students to ask the teacher a question. The need for students to practise asking questions in class is important. It is worth noting that for the Task ? in the Role-play or in the General Conversation, a follow-up question/an elliptical question using '你呢? ' is acceptable, but only when there is an obvious context, where the meaning is clearly understandable from the previous sentence.

A significant number of students at both tiers did not take on board the scene-setting statement explaining where the Role-play was taking place, for example, 'at school'; 'on the phone'. Students need to understand the importance of carefully reading the Role-play scenario at the start of their preparation time. On some occasions, and at both tiers, students gave far more information than was necessary to accomplish the task, which is to be discouraged.

Specific Foundation Tier Role-play Issues

Below are those issues which appeared to be the most challenging for students. Tasks that are not mentioned were generally executed well, especially those which required opinions and justifications, although at times such responses were over-used and sounded pre-learnt e.g. '因为有意思,因为有用,因为好玩儿,'.

Role-play 1

Task 3 !

In the unprepared question '! 你每天几点睡觉? ', a straightforward answer giving a time was required. Some students did not seem to understand '几点', and could not clearly pronounce 几 or 点. A similar situation arose in other questions containing '几点'.

Task 4

Some students missed out the superlative adjective '最'when responding to the question '你最好的朋友是谁?为什么?'. A similar situation arose in other questions containing '最'.

Role-play 2

Task 1

Some students were unable to clearly communicate 电视节目 in response to the question '你喜欢 看什么电视节目? '

Role-play 3

Task 3 !

Some students could not give a detailed description for the ! task and instead provided a simple response '好' or '不好' to the question '今天天气怎么样?' The same situation arose in Task 2 in Role-play 4 in response to the question '你们学校的食堂怎么样?'.

Role-play 5

Task 3 ! Some students missed the coverb '在' when responding to the ! Task '你喜欢在哪儿做作业? '.

Role-play 6

Task 1

Some students were unfamiliar with the meaning of '同学' (classmate) and instead used 朋友 (friend).

Task 5 ? Some students were unfamiliar with the word for school uniform '  ${\rm k} {\rm k} {\rm k}$  ' .

Student Performance in the Photo Card Task

Generally, students seemed well prepared for this part of the test. Most students were able to give a reasonably well-developed response to the first prepared question '照片里有什么'. In the case of less able students, this tended to take the form of descriptions of people in the photo. Almost all students were able to give personal opinions and reasons. There were a small number of cases where students spoke only briefly about the content of the photo before giving a personalised response that was irrelevant to the question. Understandably, responses to the three prepared questions were usually more developed than those to the two unseen questions. At Foundation tier, only some students tried to give developed responses to all five questions and hence were able to access the 13-15 band.

Specific Foundation Tier Photo Card Issues

In order to score in the top band, students needed to answer all the questions clearly and develop at least three ('most') answers by using at least three clauses, including at least one opinion and one justification. There was no extra credit given in this question for complex language, as this question is marked in terms of Communication only. Accuracy and pronunciation, however, are important factors in achieving clarity. Lower marks were mainly caused by: students' misunderstanding the questions, giving short answers, providing no response or an inappropriate response, lacking knowledge of vocabulary or linguistic structures, missing out an opinion and/or justification, serious pronunciation errors.

Some students did not answer Question 3: '你喜欢宠物吗?为什么? directly, insteading responding with answers such as '我有狗,因为好玩儿。'. The last question '你的朋友有什么爱好?' was intended to elicit a response in the third person. Some students responded with '不知道' or '不明白', which was not credited.

The majority of students were able to respond, no significant problems.

The 3rd question '将来, 你想住在哪儿?' was not answered precisely enough by some students, who omitted the reference to a future time frame and the use of the modal verb '想'.

The 4th Question '你喜欢玩儿电脑游戏还是跑步?为什么?' was not answered correctly by some students, who failed to recognise that it was a choice type question using '还是'.

As in Role-play 3, Question 4 in Photo Card E, '你的中文老师怎么样?' and Question 4 in Photo Card F '你们的图书馆怎么样?' were not answered correctly by some students; the interrogative pronoun '怎么样', which was being used to elicit opinions, was not well understood. Some students were unfamiliar with its meaning, and some were unable to respond to this type of question.

Student Performance in the General Conversation

It was pleasing to note that most students were able to use the target language to ask for a question to be repeated. Most students were also able to ask the teacher-examiner a question as required during this section of the test. The questions asked by students were mostly clear and related to one of the two themes. Some students performed well, including three time frames, which enabled them to achieve the top band for Range and accuracy of language at Foundation tier. There was a wide range in quality in the General conversation, but the vast majority were able to score at least some marks. As in 2019, there was a pre-learnt feel to some of the conversations, but by and large, some spontaneity was maintained.

Specific Foundation Tier General Conversation Issues

Generally, students managed to sustain a conversation for the minimum amount of time across two themes. Most students made an effort to develop responses, particularly in response to prepared questions from the nominated theme. Students often gave and sometimes explained opinions in addition to providing basic factual information. On occasion, there was an imbalance between the amount conveyed on the first (nominated) theme and the second prescribed theme. When this occurred, it inevitably impacted on the overall mark for Communication. The quality of pronunciation varied greatly. Where poor pronunciation seriously hindered comprehension, this could also impact on the Communication mark. Most students relied on simple structures and vocabulary, which was sometimes quite repetitive, to convey basic messages. These students often struggled to make successful statements using past and future time frames. It is worth repeating here what was said in the previous year's report; it is a good idea for students to try to include three time frames in a single response in the General Conversation section, for example, '你最喜欢什么科目? 现在我最喜欢数学,我以前喜欢美术,我将来想做科学家。'.

In terms of the mark for Communication, the required length of the General Conversation should be between three and five minutes. Each theme must last for a minimum of one and a half minutes and, if one or both are under that time, there is a penalty of two marks for Communication. Such being the case, students should be encouraged to develop their responses by conveying additional information in order to meet the minimum time requirement. It is also a requirement for students to ask the teacher-examiner a clearly understandable question, and this can occur at any time during this section of the test. If no question is asked, there is a deduction of one mark for Communication. Correct timings were generally observed, but many teacher-examiners only invited the student to ask a question at the very end of the General Conversation. By the time the student had responded, they were often out of time and hence incurred a one-mark deduction in line with the mark scheme. Given this potential risk, it is recommended that students try to ask a question earlier in the test. Students in some centres should be commended for asking a question during the first (nominated) theme of the General Conversation. Some students generated a follow-up question by using a 'statement + 你呢? ', for example,'你最喜欢什么节日? 我最喜欢圣诞节, 你 呢? 'or '你喜欢吃什么? 我喜欢吃米饭, 你呢? '.

Some students were able to deliver a reasonably fluent performance using rehearsed responses. However, balanced against this, was the lack of ability to interact spontaneously, meaning that the top mark of 5 in the category for Spontaneity and fluency could not be awarded to this level of performance.

In the light of students' responses, some knowledge and skills regarding the time frames need to be enhanced. In Chinese a verb does not inflect or change its form to indicate tense: therefore a time word or expression, or a time reference or context for the action of the verb must be clearly provided when referring to past, present or future events and actions. Modal verbs such as 想, 会, 打算, 计划, 希望 or 要 + verb, etc. can indicate future time reference. Aspectual particles/aspect markers can also be accepted for actions with different time references, e.g. verb +  $\vec{u}$  or  $\vec{\gamma}$  can indicate past experience.

Advice to teachers

Teacher-examiner Tester Performance records (TTPRs)

A Teacher-examiner tester performance record (TTPR) will be sent to some schools and colleges following the marking of the speaking tests. The information provided on the TTPR is intended to provide teacher-examiners with feedback on the conduct of the speaking tests, to inform the conduct of future tests. It is not possible to provide more detailed feedback than the information on the TTPR form. Feedback is provided on the basis of need only and not for every teacherexaminer. Teachers who receive TTPRs are advised to read them carefully. If one is not received, it is still a very good idea for teachers to take a look at the blank TTPR sheet (available via the AQA website) to help them prepare for future tests.

General

- Do a short test recording before the first student's test to check recording levels and clarity.
- Position the microphone or digital recorder so that it picks up both voices clearly.
- Make sure that your own and the students' mobile phones are switched off (not just on silent) before the recording begins. Students should not have access to their mobile phones during the preparation time or during the exam, in accordance with examination regulations.
- Do not shuffle papers or move items around on the desk during the test. Such distracting practices can be unsettling to the student. With regard to recordings, any extraneous noise produced can obscure utterances.
- The Instructions for the conduct of examinations document is available via the AQA website It is essential that you follow the instructions in that document.
- In the Instructions document, you are told how to introduce each student in English. This is what you should say at the start of the recording for every candidate: GCSE Chinese examination, June (year of exam). Centre number _____, candidate number _____, candidate name _____. Role-play number _____, Photo card letter _____, General Conversation theme chosen by candidate Theme (1, 2 or 3).
- Everything said by the teacher-examiner must be clearly audible. Instances of whispering will be referred to AQA.
- After you have introduced each student, their Role-play, Photocard and nominated theme in English (as detailed above), then use Chinese throughout the rest of the exam
- Please use an appropriate Chinese translation for English terms e.g. Role-play card:角色扮演卡片; Photo card: 图片会话/or看图会话卡片; theme: 主题; topic: 话题.
- Respond positively to what students say, even if it is not very good. It will encourage them during the rest of the test.

Role-play

- Keep to your script as laid out in the Teacher's Booklet. Not to do so will mean that the student's response will receive a mark of 0 for Communication for that task.
- If you see that a student is starting to give the wrong answer to your question, stop him/her immediately and repeat the question. Once the student has completed an incorrect answer, a mark of 0 for Communication is given for that task, even if you repeat the question and a correct answer is subsequently given.
- If a student asks you to repeat a question, you may do so. If a student provides no answer, you may also repeat the question before moving on.

Photo card

- You may paraphrase a question, provided the meaning of the original question is maintained. However, be careful to ensure that this is the case or the student's reply will not be credited.
- Ask all five questions in the Teacher's Booklet, but do not ask any additional questions.

- Keep an eye on the timing. If a student's replies are very long and it looks as though you may not be able to ask the final question within the two-minute maximum time, it may be better to interrupt a student's answer and move on to the next question.
- In a two-part question in an unprepared task, ask the first question, wait for an answer, and then ask the second question. Failure to do so in the unprepared task almost invariably leads to the student having to ask for the question to be repeated.

General conversation

- Encourage students to vary their language structures and vocabulary as much as possible, including a range of opinion words, adjectives, time expressions, verbs, modal verbs, conjunctions, and the like to enhance communication skills and enrich conversation content.
- Train students to give and justify opinions without necessarily being asked to do so. This can form the basis of different starter activities in classroom settings.
- Be sensitive to the ability of the students someone who struggles to describe his/her town is not going to be successful at discussing more challenging aspects of the topic, for example the impact of global warming.
- Try to ask students questions that reflect their interests. Don't ask all students identical questions.
- In order to achieve a greater sense of spontaneity in the conversation, follow up a student's response by asking about what they have just told you.
- Keep a close eye on the time. If one of the themes lasts for less than 1'30", there is a deduction of two marks for Communication.
- The maximum length of the General Conversation is five minutes (max. 2'30"per Theme). Everything after that will not be marked.
- Remember to prompt the student to ask you a question if they don't do so without being asked. It is better to get them to ask you the question during their nominated theme so that you don't forget to do it later on. Alternatively, encourage students to ask the question early on during the General Conversation, to ensure that it does not fall outside the time allowed.
- If the first question the student asks you makes no sense, get them to ask you another one.

Advice to students

- Use the 12-minute preparation time wisely. You can write down exactly what you are going to say in the Role-play tasks and in response to the three questions on the Photo card.
- For the Photo card questions, try to prepare answers of at least three sentences, using a verb in each one, and including opinions and justifications.
- Listen carefully to the questions that your teacher asks you for the unprepared questions in the Role-play and Photo card sections, as well as to all questions in the General Conversation.
- You can ask for a question to be repeated in any part of the test, but make sure you ask in Chinese. You could say '请再说一遍。', for example.

Closing remarks

Overall, well done. We thank teachers and centres for their hard work and effort this summer to provide their students with a positive experience and the opportunity to achieve in this qualification. Best wishes to all students who will participate in this specification next year.

Mark Ranges and Award of Grades

Grade boundaries and cumulative percentage grades are available on the Results Statistics page of the AQA Website.
