ITEM A

Throughout their schooling pupils are told that everyone has the same opportunity to succeed. Schools prepare pupils for the workplace.

Sociologists suggest that the hidden curriculum may help to reproduce the social class structure.

Applying material from ITEM A, analyse TWO ways that the hidden curriculum may help to reproduce the social class structure. [10 marks]

Read ITEM B below and answer the question that follows.

ITEM B

There are differences in patterns of educational achievement between groups of pupils. These differences can be based on class, gender or ethnicity, or a combination of these. Some sociologists argue that cultural factors are the main explanation for differences in educational achievement. Differences in primary socialisation may mean that some groups find it easier to engage with the culture of the school.

However, other sociologists argue that material factors, such as access to resources, are also important.

Applying material from ITEM B and your knowledge, evaluate the importance of cultural factors in explaining patterns of educational achievement. [30 marks]

METHODS IN CONTEXT*05

Read ITEM C below and answer the question that follows.

ITEM C

Investigating the pressure on pupils to achieve high grades

Pressure on pupils to achieve high grades can come from a range of sources. Schools and teachers are keen for their pupils to achieve high grades. Parents and peers can also be sources of pressure. High grades are often required by employers and universities.

One way of studying the pressure on pupils to achieve high grades is by using self-completion questionnaires. This type of questionnaire can be completed anonymously in private. However, operationalising concepts such as pressure can be difficult for the researcher. There is also no interviewer present to explain what the questions mean.

Applying material from ITEM C and your knowledge of research methods, evaluate the strengths and limitations of using self-completion questionnaires to investigate the pressure on pupils to achieve high grades. [20 marks]
